In ISM this past week, I have begun preparing for Final Presentation Night in addition to working on my final product which is due this upcoming May. So far I have been working on my final presentation night invitation, and made sure that I was incorporating colors, fonts, and shapes that went with my brand in the invitation. I did this last year in ISM I, and although it was a really small step in the process of maintaining my brand, it definitely was important as it was able to bring my board, presentation, and room decorations together.

Today I was also working on my guest list for my Final Presentation Night. I am inviting the same people from last year like my family and close friends, however because I am more comfortable in my field and the research I am talking about, I am going to invite my mentor Ally from last year as well as her co-workers that worked closely with as well. I feel like this will not only make them feel more included and that they had a role in preparing me for my career after high school, but that I will be able to continue to maintain my relationship with the staff at Granada and take that with me to college as well. I am looking forward to watching my past two years of hard work pay off at the end of May, and I can’t wait to see how my presentation is all going to come together for FPN.
